SUBJECT:

This fellow seems to have no design experience and spent almost all of his short career in maintaining technical data. While this is a fine thing to do it is sort of ;clerical in nature and I would be interested in just how you think this background will fit into your work. Would you use this guy maybe as your Chief, Technical writer or something?

You might be more interested in a brand new guy just out of school with something better than a 2.4 average in Engineering.
